New Releases

IDLES

As they build towards the February release of their eagerly anticipated new album 'TANGK', the irrepressible IDLES share the new single "Grace".

"The song came from nowhere and everything. It was a breath and a call to be held," says Joe Talbot, "The only words or singing that came from our sessions with Nigel and I needed it, truly. All is love."

GREEN DAY

Green Day have unveiled their 'Dilemma' single from their upcoming new album, 'Saviors'!

"Dilemma was one of those songs that was kind of easy to write because it was so personal to me," Billie Joe Armstrong explains. "We've seen so many of our peers struggle with addiction and mental illness. This song is all about the pain that comes from those experiences."

SOUTH OF SALEM

South Of Salem have unveiled their new single 'Vultures', taken from their highly-anticipated second album 'Death Of The Party', to be released 19th January.

The band comment: "Our 3rd instalment from our upcoming album 'Death Of The Party' is our heaviest yet! 'Vultures' is a classic heavy metal track with huge hooks and a blistering dual lead. Lyrically it's a song is about the people that only want you when they need something. It deals with lies, deceit and manipulation, and how cutting ties and knowing your self-worth will soon separate the true friends from the vultures."

IDKHOW

I DONT KNOW HOW BUT THEY FOUND ME (iDKHOW), the musical project of Salt Lake Citybased singer, songwriter and multiinstrumentalist Dallon Weekes, releases 'GLOOMTOWN BRATS', the second single off his forthcoming sophomore album, 'GLOOM DIVISION', out 23rd Feb!

DREAM STATE

Dream State have shared their brand new single, 'Anxious State Of Mind'!

The track comes ahead of their new mini-album, 'Still Dreaming', which will arrive on January 26th!

ROYAL TUSK

Royal Tusk announce their third full-length album, Altruistic, due 23rd February!

In addition, they have released their new single, 'Here On Out', with hummable riffs and a chantable chorus. "To me, the more people who resign to their fate and don't live their true selves, the more fucked up the world becomes," says frontman Daniel Carriere.

BAD TOUCH

Bad Touch share their latest rock anthem 'Spend My Days' taken from their new album, 'Bittersweet Satisfaction', out now!

"Spend My Days is a song that moves through love and loss and all those emotions in between. It's a meaningful and contemporary track, and we could not be prouder." Says vocalist Stevie Westwood. "We drew influence from our collective pasts, lessons in love we've learned the hard way, and from giants like the Foo Fighters and The Struts. This is one of our most honest songs to date, and we are excited to share it with you."

MARISA AND THE MOTHS

Rockers Marisa And The Moths are back with a bang with their energetic, soul-stirring grungy pop-punk anthem 'Fake It Till You Make It'

Diving into the depths of imposter syndrome, vocalist Marisa says: "This song is all about winging it and pretending you've got it together, even when you're hiding insecurities or doubting yourself. Like those moments where you brain says, 'You can't do it!', but you keep pushing through anyway, until you discover this badass version of yourself! It's is a huge f you to those crippling insecurities and to the haters that contributed to them. I hope this makes people wanna dance, whilst also reminding them of how powerful they can be!"

CASEY

Casey have unveiled new single 'Bite Through My Tongue', taken from their third album, How to Disappear, to be released 12th January!

Vocalist Tom Weaver comments: "There are a handful of songs on How To Disappear that stem from the breakdown of my most recent relationship. This is the first on the record to touch on that, and it deals broadly with the extreme apathy and self-destructiveness that arises during a depressive episode; and how that impacts those closest to you.

"Often, when experiencing an episode of depression, my first reaction is generally to dissociate and distance myself from the world. That's far easier to do when living alone; but when cohabiting (and particularly while isolating during the pandemic), it meant my partner would be subject to this level of apathy that felt impermeable to physical nor emotional pain. A type of numbness that would completely detach me from the reality of my life.

'This song is definitely an embellishment of those experiences; and doesn't discuss the situation from a single perspective. It floats between the apathetic and the empath."

ARCHITECTS

Architects have shared their brand new single, 'Seeing Red'!

THECITYISOURS

THECITYISOURS have released a video for their striking and poignant new single 'Shame'.

Vocalist Oli Duncanson: "'Shame' was written about the feeling of not being able to accept your sexuality; an aspect of yourself that can't be changed, and how it makes you feel that you don't belong anywhere. It affects every way in which you navigate through life and won't leave you until you come to terms and embrace it."

WHILE SHE SLEEPS

While She Sleeps have also shared a brand new single this past week as they unveiled, 'Down' featuring Alex Taylor of Malevolence!

DRAGONFORCE

Extreme power metal unit DragonForce are featured on Beat Saber's Original Soundtrack 6 with their new song, 'Power of the Saber Blade'

DragonForce guitarist Herman Li comments: "It's truly an honour for DragonForce to create an exclusive track for Beat Saber, a game we are wholeheartedly passionate about. We hope fans will discover the exhilaration of 'Power of the Saber Blade,' finding it both enjoyable and challenging across all levels. We're eagerly anticipating the skillful attempts on Expert+"

SCOTT STAPP

Scott Stapp has released 'Black Butterfly', the third single from upcoming solo album Higher Power, due for release on 15th March!

Stapp comments: "Growth is a challenging process. I often write aspirational lyrics about getting to that 'next level' – knowing what you're capable of and rejecting the idea that you're defined by your mistakes. Overcoming difficulty can lead to increased self-awareness and, in time, wisdom that can lead to helping others going through similar situations."

LIVE REVIEW

Halestorm

Wembley Arena, London Saturday 9th December 2023

Lzzy Hale describes tonight as a rite of passage for Halestorm. The band started by her and her brother Arejay as kids this evening headlines Wembley Arena for the first time. It's a special occasion indeed and the band are clearly proud to be here.

Before their epic performance however there are two other fantastic sets to enjoy. First of all is Mothica who is equally taken back that her journey has led her to this stage. The set is emotive, inspiring and most of all fun and clearly the whole crowd are equally impressed. Next up are seasoned veterans at this point Black Veil Brides. They deliver a crowd pleasing set of songs with an arenasized production which sets the bar high for our headliners.

Halestorm though on a night like this were always going to steal the show. The band deliver huge track after huge track, interspersed with romanticised dialogue about the importance of the evening. Compared to Black Veil Brides, Halestorm let the music do the talking with fewer bells and whistles attached to the show. The simplicity of moments such as Lzzy serenading us from the centre stage piano though will live long in the memory for fans and band alike. The takeaway tonight is one of celebration of a career but also a glimpse of where that career now resides – in the world's biggest venues!

IJJE REJJEJJ The Darkness

UEA LCR, Norwich Friday 8th December 2023

Life moves way too fast these days and remarkably it's been 20 long years since The Darkness exploded on to the scene with their irrepressible debut album, 'Permission to Land'! A lot (and we mean a lot) has happened in the bands camp since then but live and on record they've been firing on all cylinders in recent years.

Tonight though at the LCR in Norwich (their pseudo hometown show), it's purely celebration with the album played in full plus some associated b-sides and a certain festive favourite. The band are as tight as ever and Justin Hawkins is as outlandish as you'd expect. The crowd seem almost in awe of the majesty on stage and when factoring in a sublime support set from Bad Nerves, you couldn't have wished for any more from this celebration of a band that truly broke the mold!

LIVE REVIEW

Don Broco UEA LCR, Norwich Saturday 2nd December 2023

Don Broco are currently finishing out their 'Amazing Things' cycle with another trek around the UK and tonight that places them at the UEA LCR in a frostbitten Norwich. Anticipation is clearly high for a fantastic three band bill and the venue is already raring to go as our opening act take to the stage.

All the way from Australia are nu-metal progeny Ocean Grove, they bring a little sunshine with them to get the crowd warmed up! Tracks like 'Cali Sun' and 'Sunny' don't just fit the analogy but truly do get the audience moving and interacting from the very start.

The group are able to deliver their set with absolute assurity and given the traditional show of hands highlights many previously uninitiated amongst the crowd, you'd imagine that their confidence pays off tonight with the recruitment of a new horde of followers!

Denis Gorbatov

Playing as main support on this great line-up is St.Albans band Trash Boat. With their most recent album, 'Don't You Feel Amazing?', the band took their sound to a whole new level and that album makes up the majority of the set tonight. The likes of 'Silence Is Golden' and 'Bad Entertainment' help them to ensure that the crowd's incredible early energy doesn't wane.

Vocalist Tobi Duncan says that a new album is on the way and tonight new tracks 'Delusions of Grandeur' and 'Liar Liar' both get airings which are well received. The final trio of 'Alpha Omega', 'Don't You Feel Amazing?' and 'He's So Good' is a great way to close out their time on stage as Trash Boat leave their fans excited for more new music and a headline tour in the not too distant future!

LIVE REVIEW

Don Broco

The dancefloor at the LCR is packed full as Don Broco take to the stage and bodies instantly start bouncing as they kick their set off with 'Gumshield', 'Manchester Super Reds No.1 Fan' and 'ACTION'.

As you'd expect from a tour supporting 'Amazing Things', that album features heavily tonight but there is a nice mix of old and new material in the setlist as the band celebrate a decade (plus one) of debut album, 'Priorities'.

The Don Broco back catalogue at this point though is already quite absurd and it must be hard to select the setlist each night. It doesn't matter which song is being played therefore, because the crowd lap up everything that Broco throw at them. The atmosphere is truly special tonight, and whilst the people of Norwich deserve credit, it's obviously a indictment of where Don Broco are as a band.

Whether playing large festival stages, headlining arenas or playing these more intimate affairs, Broco always give it their all and create an epic experience for their fans. Case in point, the sight of a sweat-soaked crowd spinning their t-shirts over their heads during 'T-Shirt Song', despite it being -2°C outside!

And as the crowd disperses into the freezing cold night, you know that once again the Broco boys have delivered a night that will live long in the memory for those lucky enough to be in attendance.

RADAR FESTIVAL

Held at Manchester's O2 Victoria Warehouse on 26-28th July, RADAR Festival 2024 will see synth royalty The Midnight headline the Friday night. They're joined across the weekend by electrojazz duo Sungazer, RADAR alumni Humanity's Last Breath, death pop phenomenons Blood Command, new UK rock quartet unpeople, and industrial newcomers Tribe Of Ghosts.

Festival co-organiser Joe James comments: "Here we go, headliner number one - THE MIDNIGHT! We have been working on this one for a year and are delighted to get it over the line. Bringing synth royalty with their 80s vibes straight to Stage One, we're so excited for our Friday night to ooze fun whilst we finish the first day with RADAR dancing straight into a neon haze.

"We're also delighted to announce Sungazer, the electrojazz duo who bring their dreamy pop to lighten the mood and wow us with their musicianship. RADAR is always keen to support new music and unpeople have garnered a strong reputation already so we couldn't wait to invite them to share the beginning of their journey with us all. Expanding the party are RADAR alumni Humanity's Last Breath, alongside death-pop legends Blood Command and industrial newcomers Tribe Of Ghosts."

SAVE US release their debut EP 'LUCID', and share the single, 'Endless'!

Miguel Owls - "Endless dives into the realities of lost relationships in the most destructive manner. Battling an endless flood of thoughts wondering how things ended so suddenly. This is a special song on the record for us as we dove into more pop elements, which for me personally are where a lot of my earlier influences stem from. When Chris sent over the first draft of this song I was instantly hooked on it and he did an amazing job putting together the perfect dark pop rock record."

The Gems - 'Undiscovered Paths'

The Gems have unveiled their new single, the emotional 'Undiscovered Paths', taken from their upcoming debut album, 'Phoenix', out 26th January.

The Gems comment: "This song differs from the other songs on our album. It's a more vulnerable track, very melancholic, yet hopeful. A deeper knowing that it's all going to be fine, when you feel that you are at a crossroad and everything feels unclear. This is our reminder that there's always a light at the end of the tunnel. This is by far the most modern rock sounding track of our album and we love it!"

Interlaker - 'Ghostride'

Interlaker (featuring David Jakes, ex-Lonely The Brave, and Jack Wrench, ex-Arcane Roots), have unveiled their new single 'Ghostride'.

Jack comments: "I already had the musical bare bones of 'Ghostride' floating around in the back of my mind; even before Dave and I started chatting. I never added any vocal melodies to it, nothing seemed to sit right. I actually remember thinking at the time, "someone like Dave would have something for this", which is pretty amusing in hindsight.

"When Dave and I first approached the idea of writing together, this was the very first idea I thought of sending his way. I remember receiving the chorus melody from him mere hours later, and it's nearly identical to what you hear on the record. I love that melody so much and the lyrics moved me deeply. With the chorus in the bag, I knew exactly how the rest of the track needed to go. We finished writing that song within a couple of days and it still stands as one of my favourites."
